

Essay web-technology

For Web-Technology I wanted to make my first website.

Therefore I started looking around for some information about how to build a website, get some nice features in it, and of course, get it online. Since I had no experience with websites besides looking at them on the internet I needed to start from the ground up.

After looking at multiple websites about how to make a website, looking at multiple movies about it, and reading a lot of tutorials I tried to do it myself.

Some of the techniques I tried were:

- Writing in notepad++
- Editing the images in a website's directory
- Rewriting and replacing text in certain text areas

Eventually I came to the conclusion building websites is not an easy thing to do, and needs quite some training, so right now, whenever I have some spare time, I look at some tutorials, and slowly but surely, I'm getting there.
